While the Stone was preparing sail and had her canvas spread, a gust of wind came and one of the iron chocks and three wooden stanchions were carried away by the stern line. The vessel got away without receiving any further damage. She glided to sea before the wind, having no need of a tug.

The board is now being placed in position and wired, preparatory to being used in place of the present board.

DEATH OF MRS. WRAY TAYLOR.

Mrs. Wray Taylor departed this life yesterday afternoon, after a long illness. Consumption was the trouble. The funeral took place this afternoon from St. Andrew's Cathedral, the service being conducted by the Bishop of Honolulu, assisted by his clergy.

The late Mrs. Taylor was a native of these islands, but was educated in England. She left this country at the age of eight years, and was placed under the care of the Davenport Sisters. She remained away about thirteen years, during which time she visited most of the large cities of continental Europe. She was married to Mr. Taylor, in Honolulu, in June, 1881. Five children survive their departed mother. Deep sympathy is felt by a large circle of friends for the bereaved husband and children.

WEST, DOW &amp; CO.

A BULLETIN scribe while fishing for items this morning, dropped into West, Dow &amp; Co.'s, Fort street. Mr. Dow stated one of his music boxes (the Flute Celestial Voices), and while sweet melodies floated through the store, the scribe took in the scene. On one side of the room, rows of vases, of every conceivable design and color, stood like gayly clad soldiers on parade. Musical instruments, fancy flower pots, majolica ware, dinner sets and elaborate toilet sets were splendidly arranged for inspection. Toys, too numerous to mention, covered a good portion of the room and the variety was so great that even the most eccentric could be satisfied. Parlor furniture, Vienna chairs, baby carriages and pianos were among the things that caught the visitor's attention. A cute upholstered settee, with room for only two, received an admiring glance from the scribe, who became slightly confused when Mr. Dow poked him in the ribs. Sheet music, bird cages, brackets, school bags, hats and balls, clothes baskets, toy wagons and a large number of other things were seen. Mr. Dow, who attends to the customers, is always pleased to exhibit his goods whether a sale is made or not.

HONOLULU FIRE DEPARTMENT.

ELECTION OF ENGINEERS.

The election of Chief, First Assistant and Second Assistant Engineers of the Honolulu Fire Department was held last evening, at the Bell Tower. The voting began at 7 o'clock, and continued until 9. There were two tickets in the field, and the friends and supporters of each worked vigorously for their respective candidates. One ticket consisted of C. B. Wilson, Chief; F. Hustace, First Assistant; J. Morgan, Second Assistant. The other was composed of M. D. Monsarrat, Chief; Julius Asch, First Assistant; Mr. Henry Smith, Secretary of the Fire Department, acted as judge of election, and was assisted by competent tellers.

After counting the ballots, Mr. Smith declared the number of votes polled as follows:—

Company No. 1.....59
Company No. 2.....69
Company No. 3.....58
Company No. 4.....67
Pacific Hose Company.....65
Hook and Ladder.....63

Total.....381

Following is the result, counting two ways—first, allowing only fifty voting members for each company, according to a rule recently adopted, and, second, allowing every member of each company to vote:—

C. B. WILSON, CHIEF ENGINEER.
Allowing 50 to vote.....158
Allowing all to vote.....199F. HUSTACE, 1ST ASSISTANT.
Allowing 50 to vote.....159
Allowing all to vote.....200J. MORGAN, 2ND ASSISTANT.
Allowing 50 to vote.....159
Allowing all to vote.....200M. D. MONSARRAT, CHIEF ENGINEER.
Allowing 50 to vote.....142
Allowing all to vote.....182J. ASCH, 1ST ASSISTANT.
Allowing 50 to vote.....140
Allowing all to vote.....179P. SOUZA, 2ND ASSISTANT.
Allowing 50 to vote.....140
Allowing all to vote.....180

Scattering votes made up the number as stated. Mr. Wilson got a majority of 16, allowing 50 of each company to vote, and a majority of 17 by allowing all to vote. The successful candidates were called upon to speak. Each one stood up in turn, and thanked the firemen for having returned him, promising to give proof by devotion to duty of the confidence having been well placed. There was immense cheering, and everything passed off good-naturedly.

HAWAIIAN SITUATION.

DIFFICULTY OF OBSTRUCTING FOREIGN PROTECTION.

Washington, July 13.—Assistant Secretary of State Carter says the United States would have difficulty in preventing England or Germany from establishing a protectorate over Hawaii if others should attempt to do so. He said further: "We can never afford to see any other country obtain an overshadowing influence in the Hawaiian affairs, and, if necessary to prevent it, we should go to war. There is no use of having a navy unless we can have coaling stations, and as coal has been declared a contraband of war our vessels would be absolutely worthless, unless we could obtain supplies. Honolulu is of more importance than Malta or Cyprus to Great Britain."—[S. F. Cal.]

SPECIMEN CINCHONA TREES.

At the business premises of Messrs. F. A. Schaefer &amp; Co., Merchant street, may be seen two specimen cinchona trees or saplings. They were grown by Mr. W. H. Purvis, at Kukuiaele, on the island of Hawaii. The seed was planted in November, 1883, so that these saplings represent a growth of a little less than four years. They have been cut off near the ground and stripped of their branches. They are of two varieties—Cinchona Hybrid and Cinchona Officinalis. The former is the taller and larger of the two, and measures about 15 feet in length, with a diameter, in the thickest part, of about 3½ inches. From these identical saplings a portion of the bark was shaved two or three months ago, before the trunks were cut down, and sent to England for analysis. Mr. Purvis has growing from four to six hundred trees of the same age and size as these. In addition to which he has about fourteen thousand of a younger growth, averaging from four to six feet in height.

EMIGRATION TO LIBERIA.

Washington, July 18.—William Coppinger, Consul-General to Liberia and Secretary of the Colonization Society, denies the report lately in circulation that great distress and dissatisfaction exist among the colored people who emigrated some months ago from South Carolina to Liberia. Mr. Coppinger says there is unrest among the colored population and they desire to return to Africa. "The largest number of appeals for assistance in reaching Liberia come from the South, for the bulk of the colored population is in the South, but that does not mean that the colored people in the Northern States are better satisfied with their condition than those of the South. I am receiving large numbers of appeals from the colored people of Kansas, many of whom went there during the exodus of some years ago. They did not improve their condition as much as they expected. At any rate, they are very anxious to exchange Kansas for Africa. We are sending more or less of them, but cannot respond to anything like the number of appeals we get. They know well that they are not part of the dominant race, and they are not recognized socially and politically by the whites, and never will be. The general public does not understand how strong this feeling is with the negroes, and that it will probably continue. Many of them feel it very keenly. We hear it in a marked degree from those who went to Kansas a few years ago."

Mr. Coppinger stated that the majority of emigrants have houses of their own, enjoy personal and political equality, and by their intelligence contribute largely to the progress of civilization among the African tribes. Many savage tribes have been absorbed by the settlements. They send their children to schools, and have adopted the methods of civilized life and the use of the English language, so that now an English-speaking person may make himself understood almost anywhere on the west coast of Africa.

THE HEAD OF HENRY GEORGE.

Cincinnati, July 9.—The following analysis of the character of Henry George, as understood by a phrenologist, is from the pen of Professor Edgar C. Beall: "The temperament of this philanthropist is the sanguine-vital-mental, which is indicated by a plumb figure, small bones, sandy hair, ruddy complexion, blue eyes, rather small features and a high, narrow brain. His head measured twenty-two inches, which is the full size, but not large enough to give the power of a Luther, a Napoleon, a Bismarck or a Gladstone. However, though not a genius of the highest order, he will manifest brilliant talent, personal magnetism and a degree of personal courage which will make his influence widely felt. His brain is not perfectly balanced. No reformer's ever was. And the only striking disproportion in this man's mind is between the selfish instincts and the sense of universal love."

"The head extends well back of the ears in the region of social feeling. He is a warm friend and an ardent lover; has plenty of courage, but great caution also, especially in matters of honor, duty and reputation."

"There is more thunder than lightning in him, and though as brave as any man in a battle, he will never manifest cruelty or malice, even to a foe. The head is rather low at the center of the top, on a line with the ears, at firmness, and just back of that at pride or self-esteem, but developed very much laterally from these points, showing very large conscientiousness and love of approbation. Intellectually he has more capacity for philosophy than science; yet reasons more by induction than by the a priori method; has fair causality, but very large comparison, and will manifest wonderful talent for classification, illustration, criticism, perspicuity, discrimination, perception of analogies and ingenuity in the use of metaphors. He may not be remarkable as a statistician or for great accuracy in any branch of specific detail, but he has decided power for abstract thought. He is undoubtedly a man of much more than ordinary mental scope, and among those who love their fellow-men his name will stand second to none."

A syndicate has been formed to operate Kentucky gas-fields on a larger scale. A $2,000,000 company has been formed at Parkersburg, W. Va. A well is making 15,000,000 feet per day at Lima, Ohio. The flame is 25 feet in diameter and 50 feet high. Pittsburgh prospectors have 9,000 acres of land bought away down in Texas.
